ILLUMINATIONS TO BE SCENIC FEATURE

Inaugural Will Find Capital
Bathed in Brilliant Lights.

The powerful searchlights that furnish a path for returning aircraft that do scout duty over the battlefields of Europe will dim into insignificance when compared with the illumination that will bathe the Capitol on the night of the Inauguration of President Wilson.

Chairman William F. Gude, chairman of the committee on illumination, today said the Capital will be in the "lime-light" inauguration night as never before. Many of the effects will be starting from the Capitol roof will come a warm glow of light, while the great dome will stand forth in striking relief in the brilliance of powerful searchlights.

Brilliant Effects.

The illumination of Pennsylvania avenue will stretch in unbroken splendor from the Peace Monument, on the west front of the Capitol, to the Court of Honor, extending along the front of the White House and its park. Wonderful effects will be produced in spot lights on the Peace Monument and the Bartholdi Art Fountain, in the Botanic Garden, presented to this country by France.

The Peace Monument will stand out vividly in a frame of fire and will be the introductory feature to the court of States beginning at John Marshall place. At that point will be columns and pylons twenty feet high, surmounted by globes and eagles with outstretched wings.

Blazing Urns.

Between Seventh and Ninth streets, where the main feature of the decorations are to be staged, there will be four large pylons, thirty feet high, surmounted by huge urns in which will be blazing fires at night. Above the fiery urns will be suspended enormous garrison flags which will ripple in the glare of giant spotlights.

Extending east and west from this main central point will be the columns of States, connected by strands of electric lights and garlands. The third or west court will be located at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, with similar treatment as the central and east courts of the States.

Darkness Forgotten.

The committee on illumination will endeavor to arrange to have all public and private buildings brightly lighted the night of March 5, while the tall shaft of the Washington Monument, the Treasury, and other Government edifices will be spotlighted. Chairman Gude explained that there "will be no dark places on the map of Washington the night of inauguration."

Bryan will read extracts from the state papers of George Washington.

NEW NAMES ADDED TO ATHLETIC CLUB

Limit of 1,500 Near Completion, Says Membership Committee.

That March will find 1,500 members, the limit, in the Washington Athletic Club and that later applicants will be unable to secure admission, is the unanimous opinion of all who attended the enthusiastic meeting of the membership committee of sixty in the club's offices Friday evening.

As the result of the committee's work last week Chairman Carmoly last night made public the names of 150 new members and stated that hundreds of fresh applications had been brought in.

An Inspection Tour.

Frank P. Milburn, architect of the organization's new home to be erected at New York avenue and Thirteenth street, who has been making a trip of inspection of the larger athletic clubs of the country, will return to the city tomorrow. Plans for the building, which will incorporate all of the best features of the other clubs, will be ready soon, and it is proposed to submit them for approval at a called meeting of all the membership.

With the resident and non-resident membership list filling up rapidly, all plans for financing it practically complete, and the plans nearly ready, officers of the new million-dollar organization predicted today that ground would be broken in the immediate future and the work rushed to completion.

FORD'S PEACE MOVE DEFINITELY CLOSED

Hague Conference Ends, No
Further Activity Contemplated, Is Announcement.

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—The Ford National Peace Conference at The Hague has closed its doors. No further pro-peace activities are contemplated.

This announcement by Ernest Liebold, Henry Ford's private secretary, marked the formal ending of probably the greatest independent movement to end the war—a movement that started nearly a year and a half ago with the dispatch of the "peace ship" Oscar II to Europe.

Liebold announced that L. P. Lieber, general secretary of the conference, was released from further service several weeks ago, and that other American officials of the conference had been advised of Ford's decision and were returning to this country.

Liebold explained that Ford felt there was no further need for the conference, inasmuch as President Wilson reflected the views of the peace workers in his declaration in favor of a world league to prevent war.

Ford is expected in Detroit Monday or Tuesday, following his trip to Washington, during which he offered to turn his great plant over to the Government in the event of a war declaration.
